An excited Liverpool wheat market, with the May An excited Liverpool wheat market, with the May future there up equal to about 4½c per bushel, started this market to-day on a momentary rampage. The actual inauguration of warlike measures, looking to the reduction of Havana, was the impelling cause of the excitement at Liverpool and the opening burst of buying enthusiasm here. The slements of an excited buge in Chicago were lacking, however, for the heavy local short sellers had covered on the previous day's advance and on the penning advance of 4½6 %c in July, they were ready to put out fresh shorts. The first trades in July were over a range of from 80%c to 80c, most of the trade at the lower figures, and only a few succeeded in getting 90c. The decline that followed carried the price down to 85%c, but that proved the rallying point for a fresh advance. "I am through with the wheat market as a speculator," said Joseph Leiter. "I am not watching the tape any more. My sole interest now is in the cash wheat. Of course, I consider the May the same as cash. But I have not made a trade in May for ten days. That future is taking care of itself. Every bushel of wheat I had affoat has been sold. Of course, I am putting more on passage every day. The cash market could not be any more satisfactory to me than it is. Every sale I am making from day to day is practically at advanced prices."

Bismarck's Pipe.

Stocks and Bonds.

New York, April 22.—When New York operators in securities got down to Wall street this morning, they found cable reports from London indicating a somewhat feverish activity in the speculation in Americans, with a tendency to rebound from yesterday's depression. Cable inquiries from the other side indicated an eager anxiety there to know what tack Wall street would take. This was sufficient to admonish the bears who sold in yesterday afternoon's slump to cover their contracts. The covering of the shorts was coupled with some buying for London account. The result was very sharp advances all around. This advance was almost lost at one time during the morning, but in the late afternoon the buying was renewed, carrying prices to the highest of the day, with only a slight reaction at the close. The net result shows rather more than half of yesterday's losses retrieved. The market was highly speculative all day and the favorite stocks were the highly volatile specialties, such as Tobacco, which was exceedingly erratic all day and very active, and Sugar. In the railroad list the grangers and the internationals led in the trading. A raid upon People's Gas which carried that stock down over 2 points was the impelling cause in the morning reaction. The stock fully recovered all its decline before the close. The conditions in the world's money markets had as alent effect on the security market. The main spring of the money market's action was the decreased demand from banks in the interior of the United States for funds. Chicago erchange on New York rising to par. This had the effect of relaxing the New York demand on London for gold and as a consequence no gold was engaged for import to-day. Many years ago Bismarck's Pipe.

Many years ago Bismarck purchased a pipe from a Bohemian peddier, who was said to have the power of forecasting events. The vendor said that Bismarck would serve three emperors as minister, and that three important events in his life would be foretold by three accidents to his pipe. Since that time the prince has been minister under three emperors, and two days before the present emperor of Germany refused him audience the stem of the pipe came to pieces. Later, he broke a piece out of the bowl, and within a month William dismissed him. The third sign, with the accompanying calamity, is yet to come.

Vork rising to par. This had the effect of relaxing the New York demand on London for gold and as a consequence no gold was engaged for import to-day. Although rates for time money and commercial paper remained firm, call money was to be had on the exchange at 2 per cent. The sub-treasury made heavy payments on account of the navy, resulting in a debit balance at the clearing house of $1.256,564. Part of this doubtless went into the exchange market and helped to maintain its firm tone despite the huying by London of securities. The resultant relief of the London market from the pressure for gold accompanied by a rise in Berlin exchange on London gave promise of easier money there and relieved the situation in Paris as well. The result was a cessation of the heavy liquidation for Paris account. The selling of American securities which had been large for both Farls and London account, was checked. These improved conditions were reflected back on New York and helped the recovery. There were besides sanguine expectations that the war would be short or that the pope would still prevail upon Spain to ahandon Chia. There was a curious story current in Wall street that some of the operators in American stocks had been buying Spanish bonds as a hedge on the theory that if Americans went down, the Spanish bonds would go up, as in the case of a Spanish naval victory. In the expected event of early American success, the profit on Americans it was argued would more than wipe out the loss on the Spanish bonds. The "CHICAGO LIMITED" on the Chicago & Alton R. New York, April 22.—There is still a quiet market in cotton goods though a tendency towards firmness is making itself felt in nearly all divisions of the market. The reports from the Eastern markets are to the effect that manufacturers are making a stronger stand than they have heretofore, though trading its still somewhat limited. In woolen goods very little business is passing. In staple cottons, outside of fractional changes in the market made on small sales, there is nothing of note to be recorded. Print cloths are quiet. Bidding for extras at 2c is extensive but manufacturers are retusing to sell to any large extent. Old goods are quiet and somewhat firmer in quotations than regulars.

The Thief Not Repentant.

The Thief Not Repeatant.

From the New York Times.

There is considerable room for uncertainty about the scene of a story laid by its cautious narrator in "a small country renowned for its ancient courage," but Americans, being proverbially good guessers, will probably have small difficulty in reaching an opinion as to what country the London Telegraph is hitting at when, with no other hint as to locality than the phrase quoted above, it tells and vouches for a tale to this effect. The prime minister of this diminutive and once warlike land recently held a reception at which the only guests were members of the national parliament who had just arrived at the capital and had exupressed a desire to meet the local statesmen. Graceful hospitality on the one side and cordial interest on the other marked the function, and it would have been a brilliant success had not one of the Britons happened to feel for his watch to find it not. For reasons not quite obvious, even in "a small country renowned for its ancient courage," both the visiting stranger and his host, devided that obvious, even in "a small country renowned for its ancient courage," both the visiting stranger and his host, to whom he immediately confided his loss, decided that the watch had been stolen, and that the thief was one of the guests. The prime minister, calling for silence, explained that the Englishman would be inconsolable if his property were not returned to him, for it was a much-prized gift from the king under whose benign reign those whom he addressed were iiving. No doubt, the premier continued, somebody had yielded to sudden temptation and already regretted his impulsive act. In order that all embarrassment might be avoided and the country saved from scandal, the lights would be extinguished for five minutes, in the course of which the entire company would defile slowly past a writing table, giving the now repentant pickpocket a chance to place his booty there without detection. This plan was received with unanimous approbation, the room was darkened, and everybody marched solemnly past the table. Then the lights were turned up, and all eyes fastened on the polished mahogany. There was no watch to be seen, and, to fill the cup of sorrow to the brim, a valuable inkstand, which the prime minister had cherished highly because it, too, was a gift from the king, had also disappeared. The reception closed in deep gloom.

The Dining Car Service on the CHICAGO & ALTON R. R. is the very best. It is a la carte, and a meal can be had at a moderate cost. Try it.

The market continues active and prices yesterday were again advanced 56/10c per cwt. The arrivals were 2,100 larger than last Friday and quality hardly so good as yesterday, yet under a good demand, both from packers and shippers, prices were sprung 56/10c per cwt. and the pens were cleared early. The close, however, was weak. Extreme range, $2.506/4.0c; bulk of sales, $1.706/2.50.

a little slow in opening, but once buyers got to work there were many good sales. Lamba made up most of the supply and buyers were at first disposed to bear down a little, but finally met holders' views and paid Thursday's prices, while muttons were under the influence of some outside demand and were steady to firm. But few stockers and feeders in and little doing in them.

PEREMPTORY ORDER RECEIVED REGARDING CATTLE INSPECTION.

Colonel Albert Dean, of the Bureau of Animal Industry, Gets Instructions From Washington-Notes and Personals.

Colonel Albert Dean, of the bureau of animal industry, received yesterday his instructions from Washington to put inspec-tion in California in force at once for catthe california in force at once for cattle going to all states except Nevada and Arizona, making permits subject to regulations of state authorities at destination. Colonel Dean at once notified Dr. Charles H. Blemer, inspector in charge at Sacramento, Cal., to at once proceed under the above order. It admits the moving or shipping of all cattle below the recent quarantine line, though in the former infected area, if free from Texas fever and showing on inspection no signs of ticks, and that can be moved to rullroad station without exposure, and loaded in clean and disinfected cars. A special permit to be issued such cattle to go for any purpose in all states and teritories except New Mexico and Arizona, which territories have refused to modify their live stock sanitary regulations so as to let such cattle in. It is said that there are a great many cattle in California on the highlands that are perfectly healthy and free from Texas fever and ticks, and it is to grant relief to such cattle that the above order has been issued, and it is thought many cattle owners will take advantage of these modified regulations to get their cattle on new pastures elsewhere.

The Mexican cattle trade continues to hold on very well. Their importations for the week ending April 14, with comparisons, as reported to Colonel Albert Dean by his

It was announced from New Orleans yesterday that 50 mules and horses belonging to the Spanish government were selzed there just as they were about to be shipped to Cuba. Part of these mules were bought bere in Kansas City last week of Sparks Bros, and were delivered at once to the agent of the Spanish government in New Orleans, he to work their passage from there to Cuba.

Some of the best cattle in yesterday were medium weights. James Cathcart, Piedmont, Kas, was here yesterday with forty-one native steers of his own feeding that were very fleshy and smooth. They averaged 1,200 pounds, and were sold by Ladd. Penny & Swazey at H.70, next to the highest price of the day. The Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Company got them for the export trade. port trade.

Albert Pioersch, St. George, Kas. was in yesterday with hogs. He says cattle and hogs are short in Pottawatomie county; wheat looks well and farmers busy planting corn.

The government opened bids for 1.000 more mules in St. Louis yesterday, and a number of our mule dealers here went down Thursday night to take a hand. Packers here yesterday purchased 18.50 hogs, and there were 3.130 taken for shipment.
